“ I took care of you the best I knew for the past 4 years. I loved you, I fought for you, and I brought your beautiful daughter to you every opportunity we had. We loved each other with a bond like no other and we also had our disagreements but always washed those to the side. I love you so much but will never be selfish to want you here again. I know you are now in the most peaceful and beautiful place you are special enough to deserve. You are now surrounded by others I miss that will shower you with love. I almost envy you but know that it's not my time. I will never forget our last moments together....the memory will carry me through until you come back to take me home. I love you now and forever ?
