“ Some people come into our lives for a season and leave an imprint forever. She was one of those people for me. When I was a teenager struggling with family issues, she opened her home and her heart to me. I'll always cherish our scary movie marathons, wine nights, laughter, and the feeling that I belonged. Even after all these years, the lessons she taught me about kindness, acceptance, and living life fully have stayed with me. I'm deeply grateful I had the chance to know her. —Saundra
