Honoring her decision to save lives

SOMETHING BEAUTIFUL

REMAINS

The tide recedes but leaves behind bright seashells on the sand.

The sun goes down, but gentle warmth
still lingers on the land.

The music stops,
and yet it echoes on in sweet refrains...

For every joy that passes,
something beautiful remains.

“ These broken wings have kept me falling

I am running, pain is calling

And while I try to get by safely

My broken heart says, "Make it hasty"

So I run faster, but soon I crash

And forty tears wet my lash

The light goes out--its time to sleep
I hope I know my soul you'll keep"

“ Rhiannon,
There is no recovery from losing you, only the settling of memories. Our world is not as colorful without you here. Your impact on me was so profound that i will always remember you. We met years ago in an unfortunate circumstance. I wish I could have known the real you. I could tell how bright you were and the potential you had. Just finding out about this is heartbreaking because I've always wondered if you conquered the world you wanted. My heartfelt love to all that knew you and loved you. No one recovers from the loss of a child. Know you did leave a lasting impact on some of us old people. Fly high kid.

Rhiannon, it is two years now without you physically with us. Still, you remain here, not only in our memories, but also present with us in your essence that manifests in a million different subtle and not-so-subtle ways. We need only pay attention in order to see , hear, and feel them. And, we will ALWAYS pay attention. How can we not, when you are part of us. We love you infinitely. You have taught us, over these past two years, that love is indeed infinite. Grandpa and I are sending giant hugs to you on this day, your second angel-birthday 🤍🌹🌻🌵☐

“ Nine months have passed since you passed, Rhiannon. We miss you everyday, and this holiday season especially. I remember you showing up at our front door in your Santa hat, right red atop your green hair--our little Christmas elf turned Christmas angel. Happy heavenly Christmas. I know you are leading the choir 😇💛👉🌻🌵

“ Now, it has been six months, Rhiannon, since we have not been able to physically hug you, talk with you, smile with you. But, we do all of these things in spirit, confident that our expressions of love are reaching you. We see your smile in our dreams, hear your words through nature's sounds, and hug you in our hearts. We love you always--Grandma & Grandpa

“ I first got to meet Rhiannon when she was just three months old! She was such a beautiful little baby. I was lucky that I could see her as she grew into a beautiful young woman. I got to see her weekly when she was on the UCF campus. We had many deep conversations and she shared her poems and drawings. Rhiannon was a talented writer and artist whose light went out too soon. Fly peacefully, sweet girl! My love and prayers go out to you Dawn, Shawn and Cody!

“ A few years ago, Rhi had a job in Fayetteville, AR, which is only about an hour from where we live. She called to see if we could drive up there, so Kelley and I did just that. We visited for a few hours, went out to lunch, and had a really good time. I'm so glad we made that trip!

“ Our beautiful granddaughter, Rhiannon, you are free from pain now. You were a petite girl full of very big, intense feelings, all of which you felt simultaneously. You expressed them beautifully, in your poetry, songs, and art. This world was a bit much for you, but you are home now. You left your gifts with your beautiful son, your family and friends, forever impacted by your uniqueness. And, in the end, you gave the gift of life to two others, who now get to live because of your generosity of spirit. We love you forever.
